Acacia Hospice is a small non-profit end of life care organization located in Burlington County and serving patients and their families across the region. Our volunteers are treasured members of our hospice family and we are incredibly grateful for the love and support they bring to our work. We are always looking for community members who want to take part in the care we provide and there are many ways to do so. We are on the lookout for Patient & Family Support Volunteers to serve as companions to patients and their families, Administrative Support Volunteers to help with a number of office and organizational projects, Pet Therapy Volunteers who would like to bring their certified animals to brighten our patients' lives, Music Therapy Volunteers to play and sing with those we serve, and Veteran Volunteers who want to support other veterans who are receiving end-of-life care. Additionally, we are always looking for crafty folk who like to sew, crochet, and knit to help make quilts and blankets for our patients. We provide training, an amazingly supportive team environment, and lots of gratitude. Thank you for considering us! If you are interested in learning more about volunteering with Acacia, please call the Volunteer Coordinator Lisa Fox at 609.589-4072 or email lfox@njmasonic.org. Acenda Integrated Health is looking for college-age and adult volunteers to become mentors for Camden, Gloucester County foster care youth, ages 14-21, at-risk of dropping out of school. All the youth have experienced some form of abuse or neglect, lack reliable transportation, and supportive family relationships. They are in need of a positive role model and support. Please contact the Mentor Coordinator, for more information or to express interest at 844-422-3632.

Adolescent Mentoring Program provides young adults, ages 14-20 who are at-risk for child abuse and neglect, with a responsible adult Mentor. Supportive adult relationships are a critical part of encouraging healthy youth development and when there is no one else there to fill this role or to provide youth with the attention they need, Mentors can make all the difference! Our mentors assist youth by being a listening presence to guide them through their ever-changing lives. The ideal Mentor is someone who can successfully complete a professional interview, criminal background check, and reference check. Has a valid driver's license, an acceptable driving record, and a reliable means of transportation. Has experience maintaining confidentiality. Are willing to make a 1-year commitment to their Mentee, meeting with their Mentee twice per month. Are willing to update our program staff on a monthly basis through phone contact and tracking time online. If you feel you may be the right fit for this volunteer position, please review program requirements and apply online on our website at <https://acendahealthvolunteers.applicantpro.com/jobs/> or You may reach out to Jennifer Kacewich, Mentor Specialist with questions or concerns at jkacewich@acendahealth.org

Clare Estate offers top quality senior living on all care levels. Our senior living services and wellness care include a variety of options for all seniors, whether they choose independent living, assisted living, enhanced care, or memory care services. We are not a traditional care facility; we are a home specialized in the care and support of your loved one. We pride ourselves on the longevity of care providers who really get to know and bond with our residents as an extension of your family. One may think Alzheimer's disease is the end of the story, in reality it is just the beginning of a new chapter that can be filled with great meaning and purpose. Making one resident smile can change the world, maybe not the entire world, but their world. We are currently looking for individuals who are compassionate and strive to make others smile. We are in search of people who are artists, musicians, and interested in sitting and chatting with our residents. The many crafts we offer, including bead making, tie blanket making, & artwork inspired by famous artists, encourage our residents to share their talents. One may never expect it, but even in our most reserved residents, an artist dwells! What we expect from our volunteers is a compassionate nature, willing to take part in our daily activities such as exercise, bingo, reading groups, crafts, cognitive exercises, and coffee socials. Feel free to contact us via email or phone with any questions or comments. dmolinelli@thclareestate.com or (609)298-9960 ask for the activities department.

Delaware Riverkeeper Network, an environmental watchdog group responsible for the entire Delaware River watershed, seeks responsible volunteers (16+). River Hands - These volunteers work on special projects like stream bank restoration and river cleanups. Special projects take place at different times and locations throughout the year and the watershed. No special training is required. All you have to do is show up willing to help. River Hands are notified of special project volunteer opportunities through the newsletter. This is a great opportunity for families and friends to get together, lend a hand and have some fun! River Stewards - These volunteers observe local waterways on a regular basis and report concerns and problems. A guidebook is provided and volunteers are notified of training opportunities during the year. Training opportunities include how to conduct biological surveys, stream mapping and more. How far you go is up to you. This is a great group for fishing fans, boaters, and others who live, work or play on the water! Home Waters Activists- These volunteers receive educational alerts when there is a current issue or hot topic in their watershed. They take action and speak out by educating their neighbors, writing letters, attending meetings and public hearings, and talking to public officials about threats to their local watershed. These are volunteers who raise their voice to protect their home waters. No special training is necessary. You choose your area of interest and types of actions. This is the group for people who are interested in advocacy and proactive protection! River Monitors - These volunteers perform chemical water quality tests, survey for sediment pollution and participate in macroinvertebrate surveys at test sites in the watershed. Tests are conducted biweekly and all data is recorded in logs. Monitors receive training and attend periodic reviews and quality assurance sessions. Monitors can also assist in securing funding to cover the cost of the test kits and chemicals by recruiting or being site sponsors. We currently have 82 active sites in the watershed. You can join a site near you or work at a new site as soon as funding is secured. This group requires dedication and training, but the experience is worth it Maya K. van Rossum, keeper@delawariverkeeper.org or Email: drn@delawariverkeeper.org Please see more specifics and fill out short inquiry form at: <http://www.delawariverkeeper.org/> - (215) 369-118

New Jersey Long-Term Care Ombudsman (NJLTCO) has identified an urgent need for volunteer nursing home advocates in Burlington County. The NJLTCO provides advocacy to people living in long-term care facilities and investigates allegations of abuse and neglect in those facilities. Volunteers undergo 32 hours of training in communication, observation, and troubleshooting skills and are required to shadow an experienced volunteer before being assigned to a facility. Once assigned to a facility, they are required to spend at least four hours a week visiting residents, listening to their concerns and troubleshooting problems with the facility administration. Anyone over the age of 21 who is interested in volunteering can email Deirdre Mraw at Deirdre.Mraw@ltco.nj.gov or call her at 609-826-5053. Or check out the NJLTCO website at www.nj.gov/ltco to sign up.

New Jersey Farmers Against Hunger (FAH) is a “gleaning” program. Volunteers help glean, or harvest, surplus produce from farms across NJ, and FAH staff distribute the produce to community organizations that serve those in need: food banks, soup kitchens, church pantries, and other hunger relief agencies. FAH also collects surplus produce from grocery stores and wholesalers, rescuing more than 1.5 million pounds of produce annually from all sources. This gleaned produce helps feed about 7,500 people weekly during the harvest season, and because it is food that would otherwise have been thrown away, gleaning also helps reduce food waste. FAH works with more than 50 farms and about 85 community organizations, and relies on help from about 1,200 volunteers each year. Please consider joining FAH in the fight against hunger and food waste. To receive notifications of gleaning volunteer activities, you can join our email list by visiting our website at www.njagsociety.org or You can also follow us on Facebook at NJ Farmers Against Hunger or Twitter at @NJ_FAH to get updates.

New Jersey Orators, Inc. (www.oratorsinc.org) is a 35-year old non-profit youth organization serving annually over 250 youth in eight counties throughout New Jersey, including chapters in Burlington County. Its mission is to teach the art of public speaking, an appreciation for literature, reading and media arts literacy, civic engagement, college readiness, and life skills to youth from 7 to 18 years of age in preparation for college. We host four statewide competitions during the school calendar year to provide an opportunity for our students to develop and hone their public speaking and oratorical skills in a safe, friendly environment. We also have a fall and spring Beyond High School Educational Conferences for middle and high school students with College Readiness Workshops and another focusing on Civic Engagement Workshops. New Jersey Orators needs volunteers at our local Burlington County Chapter as coaches and educational administrators as well as at our four statewide competitions as Judges and Competition Assistants in the Tally Room to assist with validating Judges' scores and entering data into our computer database. We are also seeking volunteers to be board members for our organization as a whole. United Planet is an international non-profit organization that provides local, online, international volunteer and leadership development programs to communities spanning over 30 countries. These programs, known as "Quests", strive to create cross-cultural understanding, foster lasting relationships, and provide meaningful service to the world. Quest programs are available as short-term/mid-term, lasting from 1 to 16 weeks, or long-term, which can last 6 months to a year. With United Planet, you can choose your project area -- from teaching to environmental conservation to women's empowerment -- and more! In addition to global service-learning and volunteer programs, United Planet offers facilitated, project-based virtual exchange programs to empower and connect students worldwide. Schools from different parts of the world join together in United Planet Circles to share cultures and work on projects related to addressing Sustainable Development Goals. The United Planet Chapter Virtual Exchange Program inspires leadership, civic engagement, and international cooperation and empowers people of all ages to become catalysts for change. To learn more about United Planet programs and to sign up for a Quest, please visit www.unitedplanet.org or contact us via phone (617) 874 - 8041 or email quest@unitedplanet.org.
